East County athletes take part in Cal Games competition

by Marv Rosen

No matter who one talks to involved with the competition of the annual California Games being held this year in San Diego, they all agree that the competition is excellent and a lot of fun.

Pat Higginson, the coach of the Valhalla water polo teams, who has been in charge of both the San Diego Zone A and B high school age boys water polo squads added to that sentiment.

Even though the San Diego teams were almost manhandled by the Pacific Zone team (San Jose area), he felt that, for the most part, the teams were pretty evenly matched.

He said he truly enjoyed being the coach of the hand-picked players from the San Diego development camp who comprised the two squads.

East County players on the A team included Ryan Dentt and Scott Harvey from his Valhalla team and goalie Alex Julian from El Cajon Valley.

Higginson seemed proud that Harvey has been chosen as a member of the U-17 Junior National Team and therefore one of the top 13 in the nation.

The coach's only complaint was the lack of team practice time prior to the start of the games, making it more difficult to get the team ready for the level of competition it faced.

On the girls side of this physical sport, El Capitan's Brianna Cook has been part of a apparently successful A team for San Diego County.

Fencer Beau Elfman from La Mesa, although losing in the competitive round of foil competition, said he couldn't think of anywhere else he would rather be.

He noted that although he has been fencing for only two years, he especially enjoyed the work of some of the nationally ranked fencers in the games.

Another of the less well known sports is roller skating competition, which has many of the same kinds of competition of the better known ice skating, including figures and dance.

While most think that it is a weekend activity of the relatively young, some of the adult skaters travel tremendous distances to be coached in the sport.

One Oceanside lady travels regularly to Santee to practice at Rollerskateland, the site of the games competition. Conversely, a Santee adult lady travels to Fountain Valley regularly.

The only problem the San Diego games faced was lack of sufficient numbers in some sports to make the competition complete.

Gymnastics, for example, was cancelled, skateboarding and synchronized swimming had only a relative handful of competitors, shortening the competition severely.

One problem faced by potential spectators was that the games, which were played over only two days, were spread from Oceanside to the South Bay.

Making it more difficult was that unless you were personally involved with a particular sport, it was nearly impossible to find out which team or competition was playing where and at what time.

Be it as it may, this statewide amateur sports festival; which is supported by the Olympic Committee did provide a great deal of exposure for many athletes to competitors from other regions of the state in 19 sports (counting gymnastics), all in the spirit of friendly competition.

Note: Final results of the games were not available at press time. Coverage of the soccer competition will be in next weeks paper.

El Cap teamwork nets regular-season summer roller hockey title

by Joe Naiman

El Capitan High School's roller hockey team had a mediocre showing in the San Diego County Roller Hockey High School League, the scholastic season competition. The team finished 3-8-0 overall with a 3-6-0 record in East County League competition, placing it seventh among 10 teams.

In the in-house summer league, the Vaqueros dominated with a 9-1-0 record, a game and a half above the second-place team in the six-team league which plays at the La Mesa Sports Center.

"Last season they were all good players by themselves. This season they're playing as a team," said coach Ross Ludlow.

Although El Cap fell seven goals short of the league lead in scoring, they led the league in fewest goals allowed by a 12-goal margin, allowing 32 goals in 10 games and obtaining two of the league's four shutouts. It also allowed the fewest shots during the season.

The team had not only the league's leading scorer, but also the top four assist leaders. Jesse Wood led the league with 15 assists, followed by Nick Ketelsen and Jamie Pham with 14 and Lonnie Lovins with 13.

Pham tied Grossmont's Ryan Ables for the league lead with 24 goals. Entering the final week in the season Ables was third in the scoring race with 30 points, behind Ketelsen's 34 and Pham's 33, but scored two goals and four assists to close with 36 points.

Although Ketelsen had neither a goal nor an assist in the final game, Pham's two goals and three assists gave him 38 points for the scoring title.

"If one person has a bad night, one of the other four will pick up," noted Ketelsen.

Coach Ludlow noted that they came together and played as a team, passing instead of one-manning the show, and that's what worked. Four guys all playing together, that's the key right there.

Roller hockey teams have five players on the rink, including the goalie. Ludlow's son, Shawn, is the starting defender. Jerry Dewey is the team's goalie.

El Capitan's regular-season title gives it top seeding in the two-round playoff format. The first round games will be played July 23 and the finals will take place July 30. Roller hockey is a club sport in San Diego County high schools.

The 1997 season was the second for high school roller hockey, but El Capitan's first season participating.

Pham sees the summer performance as a step toward improvement in the regular-season league. "We've got good potential. We need to learn how to play as a team, though," he said.

Students learn basic skills at Cuda roller hockey clinic

by Joe Naiman

The failure of San Diego to have a roller hockey International team in 1997 had a bright side, as some of the Barracudas' players were available to conduct roller hockey clinics.

Mike Duffey, John Gravelle, and Bill Miller conducted a clinic July 14-18 at the La Mesa Sports Center for children ages 9 through 14.

The 32 participants were started off with power skating and conditioning, focusing on their skating stride and stroke. Puck skills, stick handling and skating were also taught.

Although the focus was on individual skills, team concepts were also taught, including setting up, cycling low, forechecking, neutral zone traps and breakouts.

"The team concepts were basically just touched on. The most part taught was individual skills," explained Gravelle. Gravelle serves as the hockey director of the La Mesa Sports Center while Duffey serves as the league coordinator. Miller holds the title of head instructor.

All three have played with the Barracudas. In addition, Gulls winger Martin St. Amour, who has led the West Coast Hockey League in scoring the past two seasons, swapped ice skates for in-line skates and joined the instructors on the last day of the clinic.

Students were given evaluations for effort, forward and backward skating, forward and backward shooting, stick handling, and passing. "It doesn't take painstaking hours every day. It takes continued practice," noted Gravelle. "You know you're going to get something out of it."

Gravelle explained that the skills would be lost if they weren't practiced after the clinic was over, but that the clinic could teach the children good habits while causing them to lose bad habits. He added that the important thing is we give them a basis, we give them all those drills.

"The kids learned a lot," said Duffey. "The kids worked hard, played well, and improved their skills."

"All the kids had a great attitude. Dealt with the heat real well. I felt like passing out a couple of times. Overall it went pretty well," noted Miller.

Often younger children are placed in camps or clinics by parents who have a greater interest than the participants themselves, but Gravelle felt that the students had a genuine desire to improve their skills.

"It was a big success. The kids were great this time around. For some reason, we got a great bunch of motivated kids."

Crew chief helps his driver to track record and also helps other drivers with tips

by Joe Naiman

Eric Ferguson shaved 3 1/2 seconds off the Street Stocks track record at the Cajon Speedway's main event July 19 and didn't lead until the final turn of the last lap.

Ferguson's driving instills faith in his crew chief – which allows Harvey Smith to give tips to competitors with little fear of costing Ferguson the race.

"I would help anybody out here any given time. All they have to do is come out and ask," said Smith.

The local racing community has never been afraid to help out other drivers, even if it might be at their own expense. Loaning parts and offering driving or mechanical setup tips is commonplace in the sport.

Because the Street Stocks use an inverted start (fastest heat race drivers in the back) which allows for passing points, Ferguson usually starts in the back of the main event.

He passed John Ahrendt on the 17th lap to move into second place and then passed Jimmy Villa in a dash to the finish line. Smith had provided advice to both Villa and Ahrendt.

Although both were short of Ferguson's winning time of 7:46.76, both finished ahead of Ferguson's old 25-lap record time of 7:50.40, set in September 1993.

"Seeing these cars up there going over the scales (for the post-weight inspection) and seeing that I contributed to some part of that makes it all the more exciting for me," said Smith. But Smith, who is responsible for Ferguson's chassis and tires in addition to his crew chief duties, feels that Ferguson's driving skills can overcome advantages other drivers receive from Smith's mechanical advice.

"There's nothing better than Eric Ferguson behind the wheel," Smith said. "I personally as crew chief want to thank the whole crew and everybody who has helped to get the car where it is today – and the best driver in the world behind the wheel."

Sports Beat
with Greg Eichelberger

Hello again, and for those who equate authenticity with realism, and illiteracy with charm, this column is for you. After those lame X-Games, it's nice to indulge in a few meaningful exhibitions, such as the recently-concluded Veteran's Wheelchair and California Games, featuring a few East County participants, including Santee weightlifters Jessica Schorr and Tiffany Walker, both of whom are sophomores at West Hills High School.

About the only weights I have lifted were my kids and a few Subway sandwiches, so I never saw the excitement in the sport (so long dominated by Russian men and East German women).

The only local venues to host any of the events were Valhalla High (synchronized swimming) and Rollerskateland in Santee.

Speaking of which, members of the Rollerskateland Club include Sabrena Schwin, Nicole Saraceni, Jackie Ikard, Jesus Millan and Caryn Christensen. The coach is Ken Debit. He will lead his team into the national championships of the U.S. Amateur Confederation of Rollerskating in Florida next month. Way t' go, guys.

The Granite Hills High School Eagles baseball club, which fell hard in the CIF quarter-finals to eventual champion, Grossmont, gained a measure of revenge by winning the the Coaches Summer League baseball title with a 7-4 victory over the Montgomery High Aztecs. Derek Ayres' two-run circuit clout in extra innings gave coach Gordy Thompson another feather for his large tri-color cap.

Continuing with diamond action, Gino Puerile's inside-the-park HR helped Santee Pioneer beat Santee National, 11-8 to win the District 41 junior championship at West Hills High. Other final games saw the La Mesa Broncos trash Carlsbad, 11-1, and Rancho San Diego thump Singing Hills, 10-3.

Even the Padres, who endured a 13-run inning at the hands of the Giants, have won several games on their most recent road trip, to climb out of the cellar, so anything is possible.

On the other end of the scale, though, the San Francisco Seals defeated the Barona Stars, 11-10, at Grossmont College last week to deny the locals the National Baseball Congress Western Regional title. Oh well, that's what they get for not advertising with us.

El Cajon's Singing Hills Golf Course was the site for the Junior World Divisional contest, won by Aree Wongluekiet (What??!!), an 11-year old from Siam. Friends, I'm as excited about this as I am about professional bowling, so I'll just leave it at that. Singing Hills is also offering patrons a chance to play their links after 6 p.m., for only six dollars. Call 442-3425 for details.

The Chargers have started training camp, and we've been invited. This, of course, could change when it comes to the regular season. Beginning in this issue, I will list our local schools football schedules. I'm starting now because there are quite a few teams to cover.

In the Grossmont North League, fans of the El Capitan Vaqueros will see their pets play at Bonita Vista (Sept. 12), Valhalla (Sept. 19), Oceanside (Sept. 26), Granite Hills (Oct. 10), at Mount Miguel (Oct. 10), at Santana (Oct. 17), at Helix (Oct. 24), at West Hills (Oct. 31), El Cajon Valley (Nov. 7-the homecoming game) and Grossmont (Nov. 14). Next week, the El Cajon Valley Braves.

By the way, isn't it cute how the mainstream sports media keeps trying to convince us that the WNBA is a legitimate entity with stories and box scores, and all? it'll take a lot more than that, however.

If you have news we can put in this forum, and by that, i mean recreational information, just give me a call at 390-7103 and I'll find a place for you. Until then, have a great sports week.
